ELECTION WAS CLOSE

Moseley Defeats Bird for Governor of the Chickasaw Nation.

A MAJORITY OF SIX

The Contest in the Race Was Ratification of the Supplemental Treaty. The Poll Books Seized in the Choctaw Election.

Ardmore, I. T., Aug. 14.—The returns received here from the Chickasaw nation show the closest election ever held was the result of Wednesday's contest and Palmer S. Moseley is elected by a majority of six votes over William L. Byrd.

The majorities, official, by counties are as follows: Panola, Moseley 27; Tishomingo, Moseley 30; total of majorities for Moseley 57.

Pickens, Byrd 21; Pontotoc, Byrd 30; total of majorities for Byrd 51. As the ballot is an open one the result was known as soon as the polling lists closed at 6 o'clock.

Palmer Moseley made the rate favoring the ratification of the supplementary treaty. Byrd was opposed to the treaty.

Following are the results for county officers in Panola county: senate, A. C. Kemp, M. C. Murray, Charley Carley; representatives, Dan H. Collins, T. W. Short, Joel Conelway, H. B. Murray, Joe Guest; county judge, J. T. Potts; county clerk, Johnson Krause; sheriff, Martin Love; constables, B. Turnbull and Frank Speco; permit collector, Edmunson Brown.

Poll Books Seized.

South McAlester, I. T., Aug. 14.—A private telegram received from Tusahoma states that Governor Dukes of the Choctaw nation took away the poll books of the recent gubernatorial election from Wesley Anderson, supreme judge of the Third district. The day before the election Judge Anderson was ordered to appear before the governor and give reasons why he should not be removed. Judge Anderson was a warm partisan of McCurtain, and Dukes was a pronounced Hunter man. The news has greatly agitated the McCurtain supporters here.

Cherokee Treaty Ratified.

Muskogee, I. T., Aug. 14.—The Cherokee National council has finished the work of making an official count of the votes cast for and against the ratification of the Cherokee treaty. The official count shows 6716 votes in favor of the treaty and 1340 against it. The legislature declared the treaty ratified by a majority of 2376 votes.

Tams Bixby of the Dawes commission was present at the counting. The commission will certify the result of the election to the secretary of the interior.

The council will remain in session the balance of the week.

Killing on a Train.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 14.—James Fevery, a saloon keeper of Glenco, Okla., was shot and killed by James S. McMurtu on a Santa Fe passenger train near Glencoe. McMurtu is a prominent politician of Oklahoma and organized the first free homes leagues in the territory. The trouble arose over an attempt made by the anti-saloon league to prevent a liquor license being issued to Fevery. To prevent a lynching McMurtu was removed to Pawnee county.

Prominent Chickasaw Murdered.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 14.—The dead body of Stephen Pullen, a prominent Chickasaw Indian of Ada, I. T., was found hidden behind a log. His throat was cut from ear to ear, both jugular veins being severed. The officers say they have a clew, but are awaiting developments. Pullen was to have been married Tuesday.

Dirty Money Transmits Smallpox.

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—Health Officer Friederich has begun a war against the use of dirty money in this city, claiming that many cases of smallpox and other contagious diseases can be directly traced to its circulation. Many of the banks have agreed to gather in what they can of the worst appearing of paper money now in circulation here and replace it with new bills. Several of the stores have begun to give only new money in change.

Thurston Gone to Hawaii.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 14.—Former United States Senator J. M. Thurston of Nebraska, has sailed from this city for Honolulu. The Examiner says: "It is understood he has charge of the legal end of the syndicate of the big sugar plantations in the islands."

NEGRO SELLS HIMSELF

Goes Back to Slavery for the Sum of One Thousand Dollars.

WAS DEEP IN DEBT

To Free Himself from Further Worry He Makes a Deal Whereby He Agrees to Be the Slave of a Knoxville Man.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 14.—In a peculiar way a story has come to light here which has no equal recorded since the day slavery was abolished. Jerry Logan, the aged janitor of the state supreme court, sold himself to Gerald Stuart, clerk of the court, for $1000. For this sum he agrees in a written contract to serve and obey Stuart as his legal master from now until the time of his death.

The origin of the unique deal is that Logan has lately found himself involved in certain debts which have worried him a great deal, and to get rid of them he sought this means of raising the ready money. The thousand dollars is to be paid to him at once.

Logan was a slave, is sixty years of age and has many friends among the whites of the old regime.

Burglars Use Chloroform.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 14.—The house of Dr. W. J. Matthews was entered by burglars and a lot of valuable articles taken Tuesday night. The burglar found an old female servant sleeping down stairs. They chloroformed her, and when she regained consciousness they choked her into insensibility. They then tapped the doctor's safe, finding $65 in cash, belonging to the servant, besides some costly jewelry, including a silver service. All was taken away and there is no clew. The doctor and family, asleep up stairs, were not awakened until long after the robbery, and then by the servant, who had regained consciousness.

Corsicana Compress Sold.

Corsicana, Tex., Aug. 14.—A deal has been closed here by which the Shippers' compress of this city was transferred to parties who now control the Oil City plant. The purchase was made in order that the company might be able to handle the exceptionally large cotton crop which is promised this season. The new plant will be put in operation in about a week, and the capacity of the company will thus be increased to 2500 bales per day.

Owners Not Signing Scale.

Pittsburg, Kas., Aug. 14.—None of the mine owners in this district have yet agreed to sign a contract with the miners for the ensuing year. The present contract will expire on Sept. 1. The officials of the miners' union expect that a strike will be ordered on Sept. 1. If the strike is ordered the miners in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Indian Territory will be expected to stop work.

Charged With Counterfeiting.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 14.—J. H. Brown and Harvey F. Bryan, partners in a blacksmith and carpenter shop at Marble Falls, were brought here by federal officers and remanded to jail after an examination before United States Commissioner Little on a charge of counterfeiting. Their bonds were fixed at $2500 each, which they were unable to give.

Rebels Attacking Camans.

Port of Spain, Aug. 14.—The Venezuelan revolutionists are attacking Cumana and intend to storm the city within 24 hours. The government can not oppose more than 350 men to the 1100 revolutionists composing the attacking party. Cumana is a town of about 10,000 inhabitants, situated in the state of Bermudez, on the Gulf of Cariaco.

Accidentally Wounded.

Taylor, Tex., Aug. 14.—While out hunting near Taylor, Henry Drum was very severely shot in the arm and shoulder by the accidental discharge of his gun. The entire load of bird shot took effect in the arm and shoulder, tearing the flesh away to the bone. Drum is in a very serious condition, with small hopes for his recovery.

Killed Over Game of Cards.

Avaton, Catalina Island, Cal., Aug. 14.—W. H. Keager, who registered at the Hotel Metropole June 23 from Louisville, Ky., was shot and killed by A. H. Boyd of Los Angeles in a saloon here. The shooting was the result of a quarrel over a card game. Boyd is under arrest.

Baltimore Gets Convention.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 14.—The grand lodge of Elks has selected Baltimore as the place of meeting for the annual reunion of the grand lodge in 1903, and practically completed its business, with the exception of the installation of the new grand officers.

Safe at Lyons Dynamited.

Lyons, Tex., Aug. 14.—A burglar entered Joe Krenk's saloon and dynamited his safe, blowing it into atoms. He took money and other valuables, such as notes, insurance policies, etc., to the amount of $2000.

A BIG PULL TOGETHER.

It looks like the movement for co-operation of the people interested in Brazos river navigation is well launched. It has been started and should be pushed by the people interested.

Success depends greatly upon interest aroused along the valley, from Waco to the gulf. Without that co-operation little may be expected from the agitation. The initiative must be taken by those interested, directly and independently; the campaign must be energetic and aggressive if the only thing accomplished is a scheme of private water barricades through depressions and dry sloughs. On the subject of river leveeing the Houston Post of Sunday says:

"The democratic state convention endorsed the remission of the state taxes of Galveston for thirteen more years. Something similar should be done for the sufferers from the Brazos overflows. The principle is that the state should help those who help themselves. The people of Galveston voted $1,500,000 of bonds to build a sea wall. The state taxes for the term they are remitted will yield from $700,000 to $800,000 more, or about half what the people have to raise themselves. If the people of the counties subject to overflow from the Brazos will tax themselves and raise as much money as they can, the state should remit the state taxes as a relief to them. Aside from the people of these counties being entitled to this remission of taxes as a measure of relief, it would be a good investment for the state, as in the long run it would greatly increase the value of the lands in these counties and their assessments, and the amount of taxes that would ultimately be paid to the state."—Navasota Examiner.

MINTER SPRINGS.

Minter Springs, Texas, Aug. 11.—A series of meetings conducted by Rev. G. A. Foster, assisted by Rev. S. R. McClung have been engaging the attention of the people of Minter Springs for the past two weeks, notwithstanding the sad spectacle of desolating rush of waters from the old Brazos leaving desolation in its course, more than usual interest was shown by the people and four accessions to the church was the result of the faithful endeavor of Rev. Foster to set before the people the truths of the gospel.

Cotton picking is in progress now. Old cotton, that is cotton planted early, is very good considering the drouth and boll weevil which, by the way were not dead at all they had taken refuge in trees until the rains set in when they descended to earth again to continue their ravages on the cotton fields.

A SERIOUS SITUATION

Reign of Terror at Barcelona Since the Capture of City.

LOOTING CONTINUES.

Minister Bowen Reports Much Valuable Property There Destroyed. The Cincinnati Has Arrived to Protect Americans.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Minister Bowen at Caracas reports to the state department that the situation there is very critical.

At time of filing of his dispatch he had heard nothing from the Cincinnati or Marietta. He says the sacking of Barcelona continues and much valuable property is being destroyed.

The fall of Barcelona into the hands of the Venezuelan revolutionists has put renewed strength into their campaign. The committee having in charge the interests of the Matos party is enthusiastic of this new success. The revolutionists now hold the custom ports, Ciudad de Bolivar, Guirra, Gann, Colorado, Coro, Carubano and Barcelona. It is probable that Cumana will be captured.

In view of this situation the revolutionists purpose to address at once a memorandum to foreign nations asking that the revolutionists be recognized as belligerents.

It is generally understood that Great Britain and one other nation have intimated that they favor granting the request even in advance of its presentation.

At the navy department a cablegram has been received from Commander McLean reporting the arrival of the Cincinnati at Barcelona. The Marietta is at Port of Spain, Trinidad, and is subject to orders of Commander McLean.

Haytien Blockade Off.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The navy department has received a cablegram from Commander McCrea of the Machias from Cape Haytien, announcing the blockade established by Admiral Killick was admitted to be ineffectual and had been abandoned.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Monster Parade of the Uniform Rank in the City of Oakland.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—Major General Carnahan and a strong detachment of the uniform rank Knights of Pythias crossed the bay this morning to participate in the parade at Oakland. Several thousand men were in line and the streets along the line of march were crowded with spectators. In this city the morning hours were devoted chiefly to business by the knights and their ladies. All the various divisions held sessions and transacted considerable business. There were also competitive drills between companies of the uniform rank at Presidio and in Mechanics pavilion.

The provisions made for the pleasure of the visitors continue to excite their surprise and gratification. During the day there were band concerts, free exhibitions at Louis Hopkins Institute of Art, and numerous excursions to points of interest in the neighborhood of San Francisco.

The principal cases before the supreme tribunal are the cases of John A. Hinsey and William D. Kennedy, charged with misusing supreme lodge funds while they were officials of the endowment rank of the order.

CHARGED WITH LYNCHING

Three Men Are Indicted for the Killing of a Negro.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 14.—The grand jury of Loudoun county, which has been investigating the lynching of Charles Craven, a negro, has returned indictments against Charles Lowenback, Harry Knipple, and Scott Bradley. Craven was lynched on suspicion of having murdered a white man named William H. Wilson.

The remaining five men implicated by the coroner's jury in the lynching were discharged.

MUST PAY TAX ON.

Profit and Loss Accounts Are Now Part of a Bank's Surplus.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Under an opinion of the department of justice a tax only has been collected on capital and surplus of banks, but the commissioner ruled last January. That undivided profit, or profit and loss accounts of banks are part of surplus and thereby subject to tax.

After this ruling was made by request of representatives of the banks the commissioner agreed to withhold collection pending decision by United States circuit court in suit to be brought to test question.

This suit was brought in the southern district of New York by the Leather Manufacturer's National bank of New York and was decided a few weeks ago adversely to the bank, the court sustaining the position taken by the commissioner.

Bombay Crops Are Ruined.

Bombay, Aug. 14.—The agricultural position in the whole of Bombay presidency is extremely critical. Rainfall has been so deficient that the young crops are withering, and unless an abundance of rain falls soon the autumn harvests will fail. The cotton crop is much impaired. Everything hinges on the progress of the monsoon in the next ten days.

WHACKER BILL'S CONVERSION

By H. Wadsworth Parker

Copyright, 1902, by S. S. McClure Company

The Rev. John Rollins did not notice that his wife was holding out his bear-skin coat with both hands. He continued to stare into the depths of the open fireplace.

The nickel alarm clock ticked noisily on the high mantelshelf, the only sound in the cabin tucked under Bilger's hill. The minute hand touched 12, and Mrs. Rollins coughed apologetically.

The Reverend John came out of his trance and slipped into the waiting coat. His wife cast an adoring look up at his square shouldered six feet one.

"I hated to interrupt your thoughts, Jack, but the stage is due in a minute. Were you thinking of your sermon?"

"Not much, my girl," replied Rollins. "I was thinking of that twenty-four mile ride with Whacker Bill. It is honestly the worst feature of this charge. I like to go over to Las Vegas. They're a friendly set, and they're always glad to see me. But the ride—that foul mouthed Bill, with his swearing at every rut in the road! But I'll cure him yet. I feel somehow as if I'd been sent to this place to save Whacker Bill's soul, and I'm going to do it."

John Rollins set his month in the firm curve that his wife could remember from the old football days, long before he had taken orders in the church. The little woman clasped and unclasped her hands nervously.

"I hope, Jack, dear, you'll be very, very careful in dealing with Bill. He's an awful character, they say—and—"

"Yes, he claims to be the champion bad man of the Las Vegas valley, but you remember a certain little sling once did the business with another braggart, and I'm loading up with stones for the same trick."

He smiled cheerily into his wife's anxious face, kissed her tenderly and crossed to the door.

"Don't worry, little woman. I won't hurt him or lay myself liable to the law."

The Reverend Rollins threw open the door and gazed down the winding mountain street. The commotion in front of the postoffice told him that the stage had arrived. He stalked down the flower edged path to meet it.

When the stage plunged and swayed past the cabin, Mrs. Rollins waved her hand to her husband, sitting straight and smiling beside the rough driver. Then she ran into the house, where, burying her face in her husband's big chair, she had a hearty cry.

On and on swung the stage, Bill chatting amiably of his former triumphs when the vigilantes represented the law and life was worth living. Nothing happened to disturb his serenity until they had passed Las Cruces, when they suddenly came upon a patch of road that made the stage jerk and plow from side to side, like a ship in the teeth of a gale.

What Whacker Bill said about the road commissioners of the county would not bear publication. As he stormed and raved in the maddest of profanity the Rev. John Rollins squared round and looked Whacker Bill fairly in the eye.

"Here, you triangulated sine qua non of a perambulator, shut up!"

Bill stopped in the middle of a mighty oath and stared at the missionary in amazement. So preachers lost their temper, and such a quiet chap as Preacher Rollins too!

Bill forgot the condition of the road while he ruminated over this fact. Then they struck an ugly stone, a mailbag flew through space, and Bill came back to earth by a most profane route. Rollins held the reins while Bill went back to gather up Uncle Sam's possessions. The offending bag went up with a crash and an oath, and Bill was following with a still mightier accompaniment of profanity when he felt the young missionary's grip of steel on his wrist.

"You bifurcated prismoidal of a ne plus ultra iconoclast, stop that noise and tend to business!"

Whacker Bill climbed into the seat without a word. Rollins calmly lighted a cigar and studied the scenery, and they rode five miles in eloquent silence. Then Bill could stand it no longer.

"Partner, whar did you 'furn it?"

"At college," came the terse reply.

"Lordy, an' I've heard 'em called religious cemetaries!" murmured Bill, and silence once more settled between them.

Rollins was smoking his third cigar and feeling a bit nervous as they covered the last two miles into Las Vegas. Just as they caught sight of the town's lights twinkling in the mist one of the lead horses stumbled and fell. In ten seconds there was a mad combination of horses, tangled harness and profanity in front of the stage. When the damage had been repaired to a steady fire of cuss words, Bill returned to his post, swearing as he mounted the step, swearing as he gathered up his lines, swearing as he cracked the whip. Then that calm, even voice fell upon his ear.

"That's enough from you, you quadrangular hypotenuse and polyhedral old scout—you triangular, trigonometrical descendant of the antediluvian period!"

Bill fairly gasped. Words failed him. One hand clasped the lines, and the fingers of the other worked nervously, but it was not raised against his companion.

The latter continued to gaze at him sternly.

"You psychological progeny of a mythological ancestor, you zanthidium cosmopolite, you problematical descendant of decadent progenitors, I want you to understand that when I'm riding with you and there's any swearing to be done I will do it! You don't know good cuss words when you see them."

The stage drew up before the Empire hotel. Five minutes later Whacker Bill stumbled up to the bar and asked huskily for his usual drink.

"Make it two, Jimmy, make it two, and make 'em stiff."

And he drank them slowly, staring moodily across the rim of his glass at the circle of men who wondered if Bill had a "tech" of malaria.

That night after Rollins had conducted evening service in the chapel and had baptized two babies he returned to the Empire hotel to find Whacker Bill waiting for him. They went to his room in silence, and the bad man of Las Vegas valley laid a motley array of trophies on the missionary's table.

"That's a couple uv leads as was found in men I put to sleep; that's a lock uv Jim Dewey's hair, him that I knocked out in four roun's in eighty-one; that's a couple uv claws from a grizzly I laid out in a clean fight an' a gun I yanked from as good an Injun as ever et dust. They're yours."

Rollins looked at the bad man in well assumed amazement.

"Why are you bringing them to me?"

"You've 'arned 'em, pardner. I thought I could swear, but I ain't one-two-three with you. We can't walk on the same side uv the street when it comes to cussin'. Take 'em. It's a cinch that if we put up a cussin' match you'd win, an' I'm ready to cry quits if you are."

They shook hands on the deal, and Whacker Bill went down for another drink. The Rev. John Rollins had a letter to write. It was addressed to a struggling young lawyer in an eastern city, and it wound up as follows:

"So I send you the trophies of my first victory, likewise the first use I have ever had of my geometrical studies. Hang the souvenirs in your den along with the check you receive for your first case. You ought to have a fairish collection if all the old crowd contribute, scattered, as we are, from Dan to Beersheba. Come out next summer, and I'll introduce you to the bad man who went down before theological profanity. He's a character."

And in the cabin under Bilger's hill a sweet faced little woman was praying the good Lord not to let Whacker Bill hurt her dear Jack.

Must Have Been Asleep.

Mr. W. P. Pirth, the artist, once related this anecdote of a picture collector of his acquaintance, an irascible country squire: The old gentleman frequently dined with his country neighbors and drove home, often several miles, late at night. Once, after dining heavily, he fell asleep and did not wake when the carriage drew up before his home. The coachman made the usual halt—it was the old man's custom to let himself out—and then, supposing his passenger had alighted, drove to the stable.

Some time later, while enjoying a late supper, the butler inquired his master's whereabouts. Was he spending the night out? A brief dismayed colloquy ensued, but they divined the situation and rose to it. Tiptoeing stealthily out to the coachhouse, they peeped into the carriage, beheld his slumbering occupant, cautiously led out and rebarnished the horses and drove him, still snoring, back to his own front door, where the butler ventured to awake him and obsequiously ushered him in.

"Bless my soul, I must have been asleep!" he muttered drowsily as he stumbled up the steps, but he never guessed that he had spent a part of the night in his own coachhouse, and the two clever servants kept their own counsel—and their places.—Manchester Times.

A Badly Timed Bath.

In his biography of Cecil Rhodes, Howard Hensman tells the following story: "Rhodes, it seems, then premier of Cape Colony, was to open an extension of the Cape Town Suburban railway, and many conspicuous personages were present on the occasion. After a luncheon at Cape Town the brilliant company adjourned to the shore, where the railway station was located.

"Everything was in readiness for the opening ceremony, when suddenly it was noticed that the central figure, Rhodes, was missing. There was some little consternation at this, and messengers were sent in all directions to find him. Presently the prime minister was espied calmly enjoying a bath in the blue waters, totally oblivious of the fact that he was keeping every one waiting. At length the situation seemed to dawn upon him, and, hastily getting into his clothes, with the sea water dripping from his hair, he declared the line open for traffic, maintaining the while a perfectly serious and composed face."

His Memory Was Weak.

An elderly widower was so dull and stupid that it was very difficult to marry him. When told to give his right hand, he gave his left. When the minister said, "Say this after me," he immediately remarked, "Say this after me," but when the words he was to repeat were given he was stolidly silent.

"At last," says the narrator, "he saw that I was somewhat bothered by his extreme stupidity, so in the middle of the service he upset my gravity by volunteering the following apology, 'You see, sir, it's so long since I was married afore that you must excuse my forgetting of these things.'—Cornhill Magazine.

HER GIANT FOLDING BED

By C. B. LOOMIS

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Loomis

It was against Mr. Bentley's advice that Cora bought the giant folding bed. They lived on the sixth floor in a small "five-rooms-and-a-bath-steam-heated-all-improvements" flat, and he said that such a huge folding bed was out of all proportion to the size of the bedroom. But Mrs. Bentley had set her heart on it, and Mr. Bentley has not been husband so long as to feel like thwarting any legitimate wish.

When she went down to the store, she found she was just in time to get one at half price. What luck! She had expected to pay $35 for the bed, and she got it at $25, although by what process of arithmetic twenty-five becomes the half of thirty-five she did not stop to inquire.

But with the reduced price of the bed her good luck ended, and she entered upon a chapter of annoyances that would have made the bed dear as a gratuity.

The bed people were just moving out and were too busy to send the bed home. Five separate expressmen refused to stir their wagons when they learned that it was a giant. She began to wish that it was a trundle bed. But at last an expressman who was just starting in business and who was therefore inexperienced contracted for $2 to deliver it.

She reflected that the salesman had told her that it was a very convenient size, as one side of the room did not need to be papered when the bed was up, for it took up the entire wall space.

So she went and waited for the bed with all the ardor of a small child. Every time the dumb waiter blew she ran out to see if they were trying to send it up that way, but when it finally arrived after a wait of four hours it came in at the front door.

After ten minutes or so Mrs. Bentley heard mastodontic footsteps on the stairs, the swish of tearing wall paper, the crash of falling globes, and she knew that they were bringing the bed up stairs. So did all the other flat dwellers. When she looked over the staircase, there were from three to four heads beneath her, all looking down.

The arrival at different landings was punctuated by the crash of glass and the fall of plaster. And on the third floor the bed fell on one of the men. Luckily he was a fat German, and he escaped with a barked shin and a mild temper.

Long before that there was a string of home returning heads of families separated from their little ones by the Chinese wall of a bed. Those who were athletic enough climbed over and escaped to their apartments, but the rest had to content themselves with throwing kisses to their beloved ones and telling them not to despair.

Mrs. Bentley had not hitherto known there were so many people living in the house. The stairs were black with them, and the bed moved with the delirious liberation of a glacier.

When the men reached the fourth floor, they clamored for beer, and Mrs. Bentley, being inexperienced, sent for two bottles, which were brought in by the janitor's son.

The two men sat down, or, rather, up, way up, on the bed and opened a bottle apiece amid groans from the belated flat dwellers who lived above the third. It is probable that they had already soaced themselves with beer, for they became very merry and loquacious after the bottles had been emptied, and many of their jokes would not have been allowed at a variety theater.

There is a saying that there is always room at the top. This did not prove to be the case in regard to the giant bed. The hallway at the top flat was a joint affair, two suits opening on it, and it was the narrowest in the building. When the men finally arrived with their tremendous load, they found that it was going to be a Chinese puzzle to get into Mrs. Bentley's. They shattered the last globe and then sat down on the stairs to ponder.

They finally came to the conclusion that they could not get it in unless the door of the opposite apartment were opened to admit of its being slewed around.

Mrs. Cochran was the opposite neighbor. She and Mrs. Bentley had been as distant as such contiguous flat dwellers could be. Their bows in the hall were as icy as the hall itself. Mrs. Cochran thought Mrs. Bentley a foolish little new wife, and Mrs. Bentley thought Mrs. Cochran common.

Still, there was nothing for it but to ask Mrs. Cochran to open her front door and let the man swing the bed into the doorway for just one moment.

The fat man rang her bell. She opened the door, with fire in her eyes. She had been trying to get the youngest to sleep, and the constant thumping and crashing and the obnoxious and beery laughter of the expressmen had rolled the not too placid waters of her disposition to a foaming point.

Mrs. Cochran glowered.

"Oh!" said Mrs. Bentley, with a hastily made veneer of sweetness. "May the men just swing the bed into your doorway? I didn't suppose it was so big. I don't think it was so big in the store."

Mrs. Cochran sniffed at the inanity of the remark, but she said:

"Oh, I suppose I can't refuse. I hope you'll quit your thumping after you get it in. I can't get my child to sleep while it's going on."

"I'm sure it will only be a minute. You see, the worst is over."

"I should hope so," said Mrs. Cochran, looking at the dents in the wall and the broken globes. And then the two expressmen put their shoulders to the bed and swung it into the doorway with such vehemence that it stuck like a fat cork in a small bottle and refused to budge.

"Well, this is a pretty state of things," said Mrs. Cochran from behind the bed. "How do you suppose we're going to close our front door with that great bed in the way?"

"You won't need to close it. No one will come in while der bet is dere. It is besser as a door." And the German laughed uproariously and fatly.

"Oh, but this is too awful!" said Mrs. Bentley, wringing her hands helplessly.

"I should think it was," came the voice of Mrs. Cochran from the other side of the bed.

"Is your husband in there? Can't he help push?" suggested Mrs. Bentley.

"No," snapped Mrs. Cochran. "He hasn't come home yet, and, what's more, he can't until this barricade is removed. How anybody but a fool could have bought such a monstrous thing I don't see."

At this juncture Mr. Cochran came up stairs, with Mr. Bentley just behind him. Mr. Cochran looked puzzled. Mr. Bentley groaned. He had come home too soon.

"What are you doing to the bed?" asked Mr. Cochran.

"We ain't doin' a 'ting to id," said the fat German joyously.

Bentley and Cochran laughed, but Mrs. Bentley saw no humor in the remark, and certainly Mrs. Cochran saw no funny side to the bed. Both sides seemed tragic to her.

"Is that you, George?" she called out.

"Yes, it's me. Shall I come in?"

"You can't except by the fire escape," said Mrs. Cochran despairingly.

"What are you doing with it in the wrong door?" asked Mr. Bentley of the expressmen.

"Sure, 'twould have shtook as fasht in anny dure," said the Irish expressman, and the German roared sympathetically.

Mr. Cochran is a man of action. "Here; we four men ought to be able to move a little be—a bed. Now, altogether; pull!"

Mr. Cochran is a successful politician, but he had the wrong kind of pull with him, and the only result of the effort was that Mr. Bentley pulled off some of the molding and fell on his back.

Nothing daunted, Mr. Cochran said, "Let's go around by way of the fire escape and push."

The two expressmen and Mr. Cochran made nothing of passing from Mrs. Bentley's parlor to Mrs. Cochran's parlor by the fire escape, but Mr. Bentley is light headed and had to be helped across—by his wife. Then the two entered the Cochran apartments, for the first time, like thieves in the night.

Now all six combined their strength and pushed, but the bed only laughed at them.

"Well, nothing more can be done now," said Cochran. "The bed is here, and it's got to stay here for the present. Now, you men might as well go about your business. You've done what you set out to do—the bed is up here fast enough."

"How much do I owe you?" asked Bentley of the German.

"Two dollars. I'll sent 'arount a carpenter if you vand."

"Oh, no!" said Mrs. Bentley. "He'll be able to move it."

Back across the fire escape was Mr. Bentley helped by his faithful wife, and then they bade the Cochrans good night. It was such an impossible thing that had happened that everybody felt good natured once more, just as in a blizzard or a period of excessive heat people make light of their misfortunes and passersby joke one another.

Next morning immediately after breakfast Mrs. Bentley went down to the bed company to see whether they could suggest a way of getting the bed out of Mrs. Cochran's doorway.

They had moved, and a big sign in the window bore the legend, "To Be Opened In A Few Days as a Ladies' Luncheon."

For the space of two days that bed stood in the doorway while carpenter after carpenter came and looked at it and shook his head and went away.

Then came one who said: "I've seen those beds before. They ain't worth bothering with. The company's failed that made them. Now, next door to my shop is a vacant lot, and if I cut the bed to pieces I guess you can dump it there and the owner of the lot won't mind."

Mrs. Bentley hailed the scheme as a heaven sent proposition. Mr. Bentley was down town, and Mrs. Cochran, who was on the other side chatting with her—for in spite of what had come between them they were now quite friendly—seconded the plan.

The carpenter borrowed an ax of the janitor, and in a half hour's time, with the exception of the mirror, which was preserved intact, there was not a square foot of the bed unbroken. The carpenter sent the pieces down on the dumb waiter and then took them away and presumably dumped them. Mrs. Cochran spent five minutes shutting and opening the door. It was so pleasant to be able to do it again.

Then Mrs. Bentley invited her neighbor into her flat and apologized for making so much trouble.

"It was no trouble at all, my dear. It has made something to talk about."

Now, Mr. Bentley seemed to think that $25 for the bed, $2 for delivery and $10 for damage to the hallways, together with the charge of the carpenter for the time it took him to destroy the bed, was rather a large amount to pay for a subject of conversation. So he isn't saying a word about it.

IMPORTANT OPINION.

Machinery and Supplies for Panama Canal Can Be Purchased Here.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 14.—D. M. Parry, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, has received an opinion from Sullivan & Cromwell, New York City, general counsel in America of the new Panama Canal company, which means much to manufacturers in the United States. The opinion is to the effect that every dollar's worth of machinery and supplies necessary for the construction of the canal may be purchased in the United States without restraint in the operation of the French laws under which the company was originally chartered. American manufacturers have been considerably agitated over the provisions of the law governing the French company, and it has been feared that the purchases of machinery and supplies would have to be made in France.

There was a great deal of excitement, he said, among the people in the Gordonville community. It is supposed there is a coal bed in the earth and that it is on fire.

Profits More Than Capital.

New York, Aug. 14.—Members of the United States Steel corporation underwriting syndicate have received a third dividend of 5 per cent on the face of the $200,000,000 for which they were liable. The syndicate was not asked to advance more than 12½ per cent of this amount, however; so its profits to date are $30,000,000 on the actual outlay of $25,000,000, or a return of 125 per cent, less a comparatively small sum in loss of interest.

WE WANT STATISTICS

That Will Help to Get a Cannery at Bryan.

The publishers of The Eagle want to see a cannery established at Bryan, provided circumstances are such that there is a reasonable chance of its getting enough products to can, and, therefore, making a cannery a paying institution. We believe there are more peaches grown within reach of a Bryan cannery than most people realize, and that the peach crop alone will go a good little way toward furnishing a season's work for a cannery.

We want to get some facts on the subject, and hereby ask the readers of The Eagle to make reports of the acreage in peaches in their respective neighborhoods. State age of trees—for illustration, use the following form:

John Jones—total acres peach trees, four; acres in full bearing, two; acres beginning to bear, one; young trees not yet bearing, one acre. Principal varieties, first, Elberta; second, lemon cling; third, seedlings, miscellaneous in character.

In your report state how many farmers will plant tomatoes, okra, etc., for a cannery, and make an estimate of the total acreage that might be counted upon in your neighborhood, stating limits, to be so planted, if a cannery were established.

MURDERS BEING CLEARED

Chicago Police Get Valuable Clues That Lead to Arrests.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The police obtained their first clew of value in the Bartholin case Wednesday and developments that will go far toward solving the mystery are expected within twenty-four hours.

Inspector Hunt found a woman who declared that at daybreak on the morning following the night on which Minnie Mitchell disappeared in company with W. A. Bartholin she saw a driver for a laundry company, who is now held in custody by the police, and the barn boss of the same concern and a man wearing a Panama hat and a dark sack coat at the corner of Forty-Eighth and State streets, where Minnie Mitchell's body was found. They were going back and forth in the weeds and acting in a suspicious manner.

While the police have always contended that the laundry driver, who was a boarder in the house of Mrs. Bartholin, had knowledge of her death, they had not suspected that he was in any way connected with the murder of Minnie Mitchell. The woman, however, was positive in her statement that she saw these two in company with the third man at the time and place mentioned. She knew both of them and declared that there was no chance of her being mistaken. The description of the third man, as far as it describes anybody, is a description of Bartholin the night he was last seen with the Mitchell girl.

Indianapolis, Aug. 14.—Fortune L. Bailey, a machinist, who is alleged to be the real inventor of the gun credited to Dr. Gatling, is dead. He was employed by Dr. Gatling, and he conceived the idea of a rapid fire gun, and discussed the matter with the employer. He had no money, and Dr. Gatling brought out the gun. Before it was used in the army Bailey suggested a number of improvements which were acted upon. Close friends of Bailey say that all the ideas embodied in the gun were his, as were also the subsequent improvements.

COAL SUPPLY SHORT.

There Are No Great Quantities of Anthracite in Any of the Yards.

New York, Aug. 14.—Inquiries have been made by the Tribune as to the stock of anthracite coal on hand at several cities in the east with the following result:

New York City dealers say the supply here has been practically exhausted for weeks. The railroad companies have been able to deliver only a few thousand tons daily recently, and much of it is known as washed coal.

Retail price of coal in Jersey City is $9 a ton delivered, or $8 at the yards, and orders are taken only conditionally. The dealers have agents out purchasing wherever they can find coal. None is coming in by the cars.

Buffalo, N. Y., reports that the Erie railroad's Hillside is the only anthracite that can be bought there at present. It sells for $5.65 a ton, and is not the best quality of hard coal. The Philadelphia and Reading, the Lehigh, the Delaware and Hudson, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroads have all stopped the sale of anthracite at their trestles, and have closed their local agencies.

At Albany, N. Y., the retail dealers have in stock not to exceed 2000 tons of anthracite, which they are selling at $6 to $6.25 a ton. The Delaware and Hudson company has about 1000 tons in reserve at Delanson. This, with 300 tons held by a wholesale dealer, is all that can be counted on.

The Wilkesbarre, Pa., correspondent says there is no general supply of anthracite on hand at any point in the coal region. That what is being sold is some that the companies are producing in their washeries and some that is obtained by individual concerns from small coal pickings. The regular dealers have none and can get none.

MORE TO RESUME WORK.

Believed Coal Operators Will Start Some of the Mines.

Wilkesbarre, Aug. 14.—President Mitchell said he did not know what significance was attached to the gathering of so many operators and mine superintendents at Pottsville Wednesday.

The impression in the coal trade circles here, is that the meeting was held to hear views of Vice President Loomis, of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, who has just completed a tour of the anthracite region. It is reported Loomis recommends the starting of some colliers in different parts of the region.

Warkne washery at Duryea resumed operations today. A crowd of five or six hundred strikers and sympathizers surround the works and situation is threatening. Sheriff has a small number of deputies on the ground.

MORE SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Soldiers and Gendarmes Close Them Despite Protest of the People.

Brest, France, Aug. 14.—Soldiers and gendarmes protected officers in closing the religious schools at Plougomvelin, Plomoguer and Finisterre, and the schools were closed despite the protests of the inhabitants of the towns.

It was rumored at first that the troops were going to St. Meen and Folgoet, and the peasantry flocked to those places, remaining on guard all night, to learn that the soldiers had gone to Plougomvelin and Plomoguer.

At Ploudaniel a barricade of carts, which barred the way to the sisters' school, had been replaced by a network of barbed wire, and pointed stakes having been driven into the ground to injure the horses of the gendarmes. In addition a moat had been dug in front of the school door and filled with filth.

When the cabinet met to-day, Premier Combes communicated reports on the situation in Finisterre, where the superior of the congregation of the Holy Ghost refuses to abandon schools. In this report he said the sisters had been ordered twice to leave the schools, but these orders have not been obeyed, owing to the opposition by the peasantry and by owners of the property in which the schools were situated.

Continuing, he declared officials showed the agitation over the closing of schools in Finisterre was purely a Royalist movement. There have been grave occurrences, said the premier, which came within penal laws and which would result in prosecutions, instructions for which had been sent to the procurer general.

Mrs. Deacon Denies the Story.

Paris, Aug. 14.—The Matin, which has been publishing the story of an alleged secret betrothal between Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany and Miss Gladys Deacon, daughter of Mrs. Parker Deacon, ceased publication of the story, having a letter from Mrs. Deacon as follows:

"I have read with most profound sadness the Matin's articles. I know better than any one the real character of the very brief relations during a meeting of forty-eight hours at Blenheim, home of the duke and duchess of Marlborough, brought about between the Crown Prince and my daughter, who are both children. It required imagination to transform the matter into such a state of affairs."

ELECTION WAS CLOSE

Moseley Defeats Bird for Governor of the Chickasaw Nation.

A MAJORITY OF SIX

The Contest in the Race Was Ratification of the Supplemental Treaty. The Poll Books Seized in the Choctaw Election.

Ardmore, I. T., Aug. 14.—The returns received here from the Chickasaw nation show the closest election ever held was the result of Wednesday's contest and Palmer S. Moseley is elected by a majority of six votes over William L. Byrd.

Pickens, Byrd 21; Pontotoc, Byrd 30; total of majorities for Byrd 51.

As the ballot is an open one the result was known as soon as the polling lists closed at 6 o'clock.

Palmer Moseley made the rate favoring the ratification of the supplementary treaty. Byrd was opposed to the treaty.

Following are the results for county officers in Panola county: senate, A. C. Kemp, M. C. Murray, Charley Carley; representatives, Dan H. Collins, T. W. Short, Joel Conelway, H. B. Murray, Joe Guest; county judge, J. T. Potts; county clerk, Johnson Krause; sheriff, Martin Love; constables, B. Turnbull and Frank Speco; permit collector, Edmunson Brown.

Poll Books Seized.

South McAlester, I. T., Aug. 14.—A private telegram received from Muskogee states that Governor Dukes of the Choctaw nation took away the poll books of the recent gubernatorial election from Wesley Anderson, supreme judge of the Third district. The day before the election Judge Anderson was ordered to appear before the governor and give reasons why he should not be removed. Judge Anderson was a warm partisan of McCurtain, and Dukes was a pronounced Hunter man. The news has greatly agitated the McCurtain supporters here.

Cherokee Treaty Ratified.

Muskogee, I. T., Aug. 14.—The Cherokee National council has finished the work of making an official count of the votes cast for and against the ratification of the Cherokee treaty. The official count shows 6716 votes in favor of the treaty and 1340 against it. The legislature declared the treaty ratified by a majority of 2376 votes.

Tamus Bixby of the Dawes commission was present at the counting. The commission will certify the result of the election to the secretary of the interior.

The council will remain in session the balance of the week.

Killing on a Train.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 14.—James Fevery, a saloon keeper of Glencoe, Okla., was shot and killed by James S. McMurtury on a Santa Fe passenger train near Glencoe. McMurtury is a prominent politician of Oklahoma and organized the first free homes leagues in the territory. The trouble arose over an attempt made by the anti-saloon league to prevent a liquor license being issued to Fevery. To prevent a lynching McMurtury was removed to Pawnee county.

Prominent Chickasaw Murdered.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 14.—The dead body of Stephen Pullen, a prominent Chickasaw Indian of Ada, I. T., was found hidden behind a log. His throat was cut from ear to ear, both jugular veins being severed. The officers say they have a clew, but are awaiting developments. Pullen was to have been married Tuesday.

Dirty Money Transmits Smallpox.

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—Health Officer Friederich has begun a war against the use of dirty money in this city, claiming that many cases of smallpox and other contagious diseases can be directly traced to its circulation. Many of the banks have agreed to gather in what they can of the worst appearing of paper money now in circulation here and replace it with new bills. Several of the stores have begun to give only new money in change.

Thurston Gone to Hawaii.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 14.—Former United States Senator J. M. Thurston of Nebraska, has sailed from this city for Honolulu. The Examiner says: "It is understood he has charge of the legal end of the syndicate of the big sugar plantations in the islands."

To Free Himself from Further Worry He Makes a Deal Whereby He Agrees to Be the Slave of a Knoxville Man.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 14.—In a peculiar way a story has come to light here which has no equal recorded since the day slavery was abolished. Jerry Logan, the aged janitor of the state supreme court, sold himself to Gerald Stuart, clerk of the court, for $1000. For this sum he agrees in a written contract to serve and obey Stuart as his legal master from now until the time of his death.

The origin of the unique deal is that Logan has lately found himself involved in certain debts which have worried him a great deal, and to get rid of them he sought this means of raising the ready money. The thousand dollars is to be paid to him at once.

Logan was a slave, is sixty years of age and has many friends among the whites of the old regime.

Burglars Use Chloroform.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 14.—The house of Dr. W. J. Matthews was entered by burglars and a lot of valuable articles taken Tuesday night. The burglar found an old female servant sleeping down stairs. They chloroformed her, and when she regained consciousness they choked her into insensibility. They then tapped the doctor's safe, finding $65 in cash, belonging to the servant, besides some costly jewelry, including a silver service. All was taken away and there is no clew. The doctor and family, asleep up stairs, were not awakened until long after the robbery, and then by the servant, who had regained consciousness.

Corsicana Compress Sold.

Corsicana, Tex., Aug. 14.—A deal has been closed here by which the Shippers' compress of this city was transferred to parties who now control the Oil City plant. The purchase was made in order that the company might be able to handle the exceptionally large cotton crop which is promised this season. The new plant will be put in operation in about a week, and the capacity of the company will thus be increased to 2500 bales per day.

Owners Not Signing Scale.

Pittsburg, Kas., Aug. 14.—None of the mine owners in this district have yet agreed to sign a contract with the miners for the ensuing year. The present contract will expire on Sept. 1. The officials of the miners' union expect that a strike will be ordered on Sept. 1. If the strike is ordered the miners in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Indian Territory will be expected to stop work.

Charged With Counterfeiting.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 14.—J. H. Brown and Harvey F. Bryan, partners in a blacksmith and carpenter shop at Marble Falls, were brought here by federal officers and remanded to jail after an examination before United States Commissioner Little on a charge of counterfeiting. Their bonds were fixed at $2500 each, which they were unable to give.

Rebels Attacking Cumana.

Port of Spain, Aug. 14.—The Venezuelan revolutionists are attacking Cumana and intend to storm the city within 24 hours. The government can not oppose more than 350 men to the 1100 revolutionists composing the attacking party. Cumana is a town of about 10,000 inhabitants, situated in the state of Bermudez, on the Gulf of Cariaco.

Accidentally Wounded.

Taylor, Tex., Aug. 14.—While out hunting near Taylor, Henry Drum was very severely shot in the arm and shoulder by the accidental discharge of his gun. The entire load of bird shot took effect in the arm and shoulder, tearing the flesh away to the bone. Drum is in a very serious condition, with small hopes for his recovery.

Killed Over Game of Cards.

Avaton, Catalina Island, Cal., Aug. 14.—W. H. Keager, who registered at the Hotel Metropole June 23 from Louisville, Ky., was shot and killed by A. H. Boyd of Los Angeles in a saloon here. The shooting was the result of a quarrel over a card game. Boyd is under arrest.

Baltimore Gets Convention.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 14.—The grand lodge of Elks has selected Baltimore as the place of meeting for the annual reunion of the grand lodge in 1903, and practically completed its business, with the exception of the installation of the new grand officers.

Safe at Lyons Dynamited.

Lyons, Tex., Aug. 14.—A burglar entered Joe Krenk's saloon and dynamited his safe, blowing it into atoms. He took money and other valuables, such as notes, insurance policies, etc., to the amount of $2000.

A BIG PULL TOGETHER.

It looks like the movement for co-operation of the people interested in Brazos river navigation is well launched. It has been started and should be pushed by the people interested.

Success depends greatly upon interest aroused along the valley, from Waco to the gulf. Without that co-operation little may be expected from the agitation. The initiative must be taken by those interested, directly and independently; the campaign must be energetic and aggressive if the only thing accomplished is a scheme of private water barricades through depressions and dry sloughs. On the subject of river leveeing the Houston Post of Sunday says:

"The democratic state convention endorsed the remission of the state taxes of Galveston for thirteen more years. Something similar should be done for the sufferers from the Brazos overflows. The principle is that the state should help those who help themselves. The people of Galveston voted $1,500,000 of bonds to build a sea wall. The state taxes for the term they are remitted will yield from $700,000 to $800,000 more, or about half what the people have to raise themselves. If the people of the counties subject to overflow from the Brazos will tax themselves and raise as much money as they can, the state should remit the state taxes as a relief to them. Aside from the people of these counties being entitled to this remission of taxes as a measure of relief, it would be a good investment for the state, as in the long run it would greatly increase the value of the lands in these counties and their assessments, and the amount of taxes that would ultimately be paid to the state."—Navasota Examiner.

Sulphur is being successfully used by some of our farmers for the extermination of boll weevils, and they claim that it is a "dead shot." It is burned in the early morning and late in the evening, after sundown, when the atmosphere is heavy, so that the fumes will go to the ground. A stick ten or twelve inches long is wrapped with cotton or old rags, every two or three inches, filled with the mineral, ignited and dropped every twenty or thirty feet in the cotton rows. Twenty rows apart is sufficiently close to effectually destroy every weevil in the field, together with any other insects that may be injuring the crop. The plant, it is said, is in no instance injured. —Calvert Courier-Chronicle.

MINTER SPRINGS.

Minter Springs, Texas, Aug. 11.—A series of meetings conducted by Rev. G. A. Foster, assisted by Rev. S. R. McClung have been engaging the attention of the people of Minter Springs for the past two weeks, notwithstanding the sad spectacle of desolating rush of waters from the old Brazos leaving desolation in its course, more than usual interest was shown by the people and four accessions to the church was the result of the faithful endeavor of Rev. Foster to set before the people the truths of the gospel.

Cotton picking is in progress now. Old cotton, that is cotton planted early, is very good considering the drouth and boll weevil which, by the way were not dead at all they had taken refuge in trees until the rains set in when they decended to earth again to continue their ravages on the cotton fields.

Mrs. Parker and daughter, Miss Fay have returned from a visit to relatives in north Texas.

A SERIOUS SITUATION

Reign of Terror at Barcelona Since the Capture of City.

LOOTING CONTINUES.

Minister Bowen Reports Much Valuable Property There Destroyed. The Cincinnati Has Arrived to Protect Americans.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Minister Bowen at Caracas reports to the state department that the situation there is very critical.

At time of filing of his dispatch he had heard nothing from the Cincinnati or Marietta. He says the sacking of Barcelona continues and much valuable property is being destroyed.

The fall of Barcelona into the hands of the Venezuelan revolutionists has put renewed strength into their campaign. The committee having in charge the interests of the Matos party is enthusiastic of this new success. The revolutionists now hold the custom ports, Ciudad de Bolivar, Guirila, Gann, Colorado, Coro, Carubano and Barcelona. It is probable that Cumana will be captured.

In view of this situation the revolutionists purpose to address at once a memorandum to foreign nations asking that the revolutionists be recognized as belligerents.

It is generally understood that Great Britain and one other nation have intimated that they favor granting the request even in advance of its presentation.

At the navy department a cablegram has been received from Commander McLean reporting the arrival of the Cincinnati at Barcelona. The Marietta is at Port of Spain, Trinidad, and is subject to orders of Commander McLean.

Haytien Blockade Off.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The navy department has received a cablegram from Commander McCrea of the Machias from Cape Haytien, announcing the blockade established by Admiral Killick was admitted be ineffectual and had been abandoned.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Monster Parade of the Uniform Rank in the City of Oakland.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—Major General Carnahan and a strong detachment of the uniform rank Knights of Pythias crossed the bay this morning to participate in the parade at Oakland. Several thousand men were in line and the streets along the line of march were crowded with spectators.

In this city the morning hours were devoted chiefly to business by the knights and their ladies. All the various divisions held sessions and transacted considerable business. There were also competitive drills between companies of the uniform rank at Presidio and in Mechanics pavilion.

The provisions made for the pleasure of the visitors continue to excite their surprise and gratification. During the day there were band concerts, free exhibitions at Louis Hopkins Institute of Art, and numerous excursions to points of interest in the neighborhood of San Francisco.

The principal cases before the supreme tribunal are the cases of John A. Hinsey and William D. Kennedy, charged with misusing supreme lodge funds while they were officials of the endowment rank of the order.

CHARGED WITH LYNCHING

Three Men Are Indicted for the Killing of a Negro.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 14.—The grand jury of Loudon county, which has been investigating the lynching of Charles Craven, a negro, has returned indictments against Charles Lowenback, Harry Knipple, and Scott Brady. Craven was lynched on suspicion of having murdered a white man named William H. Wilson.

The remaining five men implicated by the coroner's jury in the lynching were discharged.

MUST PAY TAX ON.

Profit and Loss Accounts Are Now Part of a Bank's Surplus.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Under an opinion of the department of justice a tax only has been collected on capital and surplus of banks, but the commissioner ruled last January. That undivided profit, or profit and loss accounts of banks are part of surplus and thereby subject to tax.

After this ruling was made by request of representatives of the banks the commissioner agreed to withhold collection pending decision by United States circuit court in suit to be brought to test question.

This suit was brought in the southern district of New York by the Leather Manufacturer's National Bank of New York and was decided a few weeks ago adversely to the bank, the court sustaining the position taken by the commissioner.

Bombay Crops Are Ruined.

Bombay, Aug. 14.—The agricultural position in the whole of Bombay presidency is extremely critical. Rainfall has been so deficient that the young crops are withering, and unless an abundance of rain falls soon the autumn harvests will fail. The cotton crop is much impaired. Everything hinges on the progress of the monsoon in the next ten days.

WHACKER BILL'S CONVERSION

By H. Wadsworth Parker

Copyright, 1902, by S. S. McClure Company

The Rev. John Rollins did not notice that his wife was holding out his bear-skin coat with both hands. He continued to stare into the depths of the open fireplace.

The nickel alarm clock ticked noisily on the high mantelshelf, the only sound in the cabin tucked under Bilger's hill. The minute hand touched 12, and Mrs. Rollins coughed apologetically.

The Reverend John came out of his trance and slipped into the waiting coat. His wife cast an adoring look up at his square shouldered six feet one.

"I hated to interrupt your thoughts, Jack, but the stage is due in a minute. Were you thinking of your sermon?"

"Not much, my girl," replied Rollins. "I was thinking of that twenty-four mile ride with Whacker Bill. It is honestly the worst feature of this charge. I like to go over to Las Vegas. They're a friendly set, and they're always glad to see me. But the ride—that foul mouthed Bill, with his swearing at every rut in the road! But I'll cure him yet. I feel somehow as if I'd been sent to this place to save Whacker Bill's soul, and I'm going to do it."

John Rollins set his mouth in the firm curve that his wife could remember from the old football days, long before he had taken orders in the church. The little woman clasped and unclasped her hands nervously.

"I hope, Jack, dear, you'll be very, very careful in dealing with Bill. He's an awful character, they say—and—"

He smiled cheerily into his wife's anxious face, kissed her tenderly and crossed to the door.

"Don't worry, little woman. I won't hurt him or lay myself liable to the law."

The Reverend Rollins threw open the door and gazed down the winding mountain street. The commotion in front of the postoffice told him that the stage had arrived. He stalked down the flower edged path to meet it.

When the stage plunged and swayed past the cabin, Mrs. Rollins waved her hand to her husband, sitting straight and smiling beside the rough driver. Then she ran into the house, where, burying her face in her husband's big chair, she had a hearty cry.

On and on swung the stage, Bill chatting amiably of his former triumphs when the vigilantes represented the law and life was worth living. Nothing happened to disturb his serenity until they had passed Las Cruces, when they suddenly came upon a patch of road that made the stage jerk and plow from side to side, like a ship in the teeth of a gale.

What Whacker Bill said about the road commissioners of the county would not bear publication. As he stormed and raved in the maddest of profanity the Rev. John Rollins squared round and looked Whacker Bill fairly in the eye.

"Here, you triangulated sine qua non of a perambulator, shut up!"

Bill stopped in the middle of a mighty oath and stared at the missionary in amazement. So preachers lost their temper, and such a quiet chap as Preacher Rollins too!

Bill forgot the condition of the road while he ruminated over this fact. Then they struck an ugly stone, a mailbag flew through space, and Bill came back to earth by a most profane route. Rollins held the reins while Bill went back to gather up Uncle Sam's possessions. The offending bag went up with a crash and an oath, and Bill was following with a still mightier accompaniment of profanity when he felt the young missionary's grip of steel on his wrist.

"You bifurcated prismoidal of a ne plus ultra iconoclast, stop that noise and tend to business!"

Whacker Bill climbed into the seat without a word. Rollins calmly lighted a cigar and studied the scenery, and they rode five miles in eloquent silence. Then Bill could stand it no longer.

"Partner, whar did you 'farn it?"

"At college," came the terse reply.

"Lordy, an' I've heard 'em called religious cemetaries!" murmured Bill, and silence once more settled between them.

Rollins was smoking his third cigar and feeling a bit nervous as they covered the last two miles into Las Vegas. Just as they caught sight of the town's lights twinkling in the mist one of the lead horses stumbled and fell. In ten seconds there was a mad combination of horses, tangled harness and profanity in front of the stage. When the damage had been repaired to a steady fire of cuss words, Bill returned to his post, swearing as he mounted the step, swearing as he gathered up his lines, swearing as he cracked the whip. Then that calm, even voice fell upon his ear.

"That's enough from you, you quadrangular hypotenuse and polyhedral old scout—you triangular, trigonometrical descendant of the antediluvian period!"

Bill fairly gasped. Words failed him. One hand clasped the lines, and the fingers of the other worked nervously, but it was not raised against his companion. The latter continued to gaze at him sternly.

"You psychological progeny of a mythological ancestry, you zanthidium cosmopolite, you problematical descendant of decadent progenitors, I want you to understand that when I'm riding with you and there's any swearing to be done I will do it! You don't know good cuss words when you see them."

The stage drew up before the Empire hotel. Five minutes later Whacker Bill stumbled up to the bar and asked huskily for his usual drink.

"Make it two, Jimmy, make it two, and make 'em stiff."

And he drank them slowly, staring moodily across the rim of his glass at the circle of men who wondered if Bill had a "tech" of malaria.

That night after Rollins had conducted evening service in the chapel and had baptized two babies he returned to the Empire hotel to find Whacker Bill waiting for him. They went to his room in silence, and the bad man of Las Vegas valley laid a motley array of trophies on the missionary's table.

"That's a couple uv leads as was found in men I put to sleep; that's a lock uv Jim Dewey's hair, him that I knocked out in four roun's in eighty-one; that's a couple uv claws from a grizzly I laid out in a clean fight an' a gun I yanked from as good an Injun as ever et dust. They're yours."

Rollins looked at the bad man in well assumed amazement.

"Why are you bringing them to me?"

"You've 'arned 'em, pardner. I thought I could swear, but I ain't one-two-three with you. We can't walk on the same side uv the street when it comes to cussin'. Take 'em. It's a cinch that if we put up a cussin' match you'd win, an' I'm ready to cry quits ef you are."

They shook hands on the deal, and Whacker Bill went down for another drink. The Rev. John Rollins had a letter to write. It was addressed to a struggling young lawyer in an eastern city, and it wound up as follows:

"So I send you the trophies of my first victory, likewise the first use I have ever had of my geometrical studies. Hang the souvenirs in your den along with the check you receive for your first case. You ought to have a fairish collection if all the old crowd contribute, scattered, as we are, from Dan to Beersheba. Come out next summer, and I'll introduce you to the bad man who went down before theological profanity. He's a character."

And in the cabin under Bilger's hill a sweet faced little woman was praying the good Lord not to let Whacker Bill hurt her dear Jack.

HER GIANT FOLDING BED

By C. B. LOOMIS

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Loomis

It was against Mr. Bentley's advice that Cora bought the giant folding bed. They lived on the sixth floor in a small "five-rooms-and-a-bath-steam-heated-all-improvements" flat, and he said that such a huge folding bed was out of all proportion to the size of the bedroom. But Mrs. Bentley had set her heart on it, and Mr. Bentley has not been husband so long as to feel like thwarting any legitimate wish.

When she went down to the store, she found she was just in time to get one at half price. What luck! She had expected to pay $35 for the bed, and she got it at $25, although by what process of arithmetic twenty-five becomes the half of thirty-five she did not stop to inquire.

But with the reduced price of the bed her good luck ended, and she entered upon a chapter of annoyances that would have made the bed dear as a gratuity.

The bed people were just moving out and were too busy to send the bed home. Five separate expressmen refused to stir their wagons when they learned that it was a giant. She began to wish that it was a trundle bed. But at last an expressman who was just starting in business and who was therefore inexperienced contracted for $2 to deliver it.

She reflected that the salesman had told her that it was a very convenient size, as one side of the room did not need to be papered when the bed was up, for it took up the entire wall space.

So she went and waited for the bed with all the ardor of a small child. Every time the dumb waiter blew she ran out to see if they were trying to send it up that way, but when it finally arrived after a wait of four hours it came in at the front door.

After ten minutes or so Mrs. Bentley heard mastodontic footsteps on the stairs, the swish of tearing wall paper, the crash of falling globes, and she knew that they were bringing the bed up stairs. So did all the other flat dwellers. When she looked over the staircase, there were from three to four heads beneath her, all looking down.

The arrival at different landings was punctuated by the crash of glass and the fall of plaster. And on the third floor the bed fell on one of the men. Luckily he was a fat German, and he escaped with a barked shin and a mild temper.

Long before that there was a string of home returning heads of families separated from their little ones by the Chinese wall of a bed. Those who were athletic enough climbed over and escaped to their apartments, but the rest had to content themselves with throwing kisses to their beloved ones and telling them not to despair.

Mrs. Bentley had not hitherto known there were so many people living in the house. The stairs were black with them, and the bed moved with the deliberation of a glacier.

When the men reached the fourth floor, they clamored for beer, and Mrs. Bentley, being inexperienced, sent for two bottles, which were brought in by the janitor's son.

The two men sat down, or rather, up, way up, on the bed and opened a bottle apiece amid groans from the belated flat dwellers who lived above the third. It is probable that they had already soled themselves with beer, for they became very merry and loquacious after the bottles had been emptied, and many of their jokes would not have been allowed at a variety theater.

There is a saying that there is at ways room at the top. This did not prove to be the case in regard to the giant bed. The hallway at the top flat was a joint affair, two suits opening on it, and it was the narrowest in the building. When the men finally arrived with their tremendous load, they found that it was going to be a Chinese puzzle to get into Mrs. Bentley's. They shattered the last globe and then sat down on the stairs to ponder.

They finally came to the conclusion that they could not get it in unless the door of the opposite apartment were opened to admit of its being slewed around.

Mrs. Cochran was the opposite neighbor. She and Mrs. Bentley had been, as distant as such contiguous flat dwellers could be. Their bows in the hall were as icy as the hall itself. Mrs. Cochran thought Mrs. Bentley a foolish little new wife, and Mrs. Bentley thought Mrs. Cochran common.

Still, there was nothing for it but to ask Mrs. Cochran to open her front door and let the man swing the bed into the doorway for just one moment.

The fat man rang her bell. She opened the door, with fire in her eyes. She had been trying to get the youngest to sleep, and the constant thumping and crashing and the obnoxious and heavy laughter of the expressmen had rolled the not too placid waters of her disposition to a foaming point.

Mrs. Cochran glowered.

"Oh!" said Mrs. Bentley, with a hardly made veneer of sweetness. "May the men just swing the bed into your hallway so that they can get it into my doorway? I didn't suppose it was so big. I don't think it was so big in the store."

Mrs. Cochran sniffed at the inanity of the remark, but she said:

"Oh, I suppose I can't refuse. I hope you'll quit your thumping after you get it in. I can't get my child to sleep while it's going on."

"I'm sure it will only be a minute. You see, the worst is over."

"I should hope so," said Mrs. Cochran, looking at the dents in the wall and the broken globes. And then the two expressmen put their shoulders to the bed and swung it into the doorway with such vehemence that it stuck like a fat cork in a small bottle and refused to budge.

"Well, this is a pretty state of things," said Mrs. Cochran from behind the bed. "How do you suppose we're going to close our front door with that great bed in the way?"

"You won't need to close it. No one will come in while der bet is dere. It is besser as a door." And the German laughed uproariously and fatly.

"Oh, but this is too awful!" said Mrs. Bentley, wringing her hands helplessly.

"I should think it was," came the voice of Mrs. Cochran from the other side of the bed.

"Is your husband in there? Can't he help push?" suggested Mrs. Bentley.

"No," snapped Mrs. Cochran. "He hasn't come home yet, and, what's more, he can't until this barricade is removed. How anybody but a fool could have bought such a monstrous thing I don't see."

At this juncture Mr. Cochran came up stairs, with Mr. Bentley just behind him. Mr. Cochran looked puzzled. Mr. Bentley groaned. He had come home too soon.

"What are you doing to the bed?" asked Mrs. Cochran.

"Ve ain't doin' a 'ting to id," said the fat German jocosely.

Bentley and Cochran laughed, but Mrs. Bentley saw no humor in the remark, and certainly Mrs. Cochran saw no funny side to the bed. Both sides seemed tragic to her.

"Is that you, George?" she called out.

"Yes, it's me. Shall I come in?"

"You can't except by the fire escape," said Mrs. Cochran despairingly.

"What are you doing with it in the wrong door?" asked Mr. Bentley of the expressmen.

"Sure, 'twould have shook as fasht in anny dure," said the Irish expressman, and the German roared sympathetically.

Mr. Cochran is a man of action. "Here; you four men ought to be able to move a little be—a bed. Now, altogether, pull!"

Mr. Cochran is a successful politician, but he had the wrong kind of pull with him, and the only result of the effort was that Mr. Bentley pulled off some of the molding and fell on his back.

Nothing daunted, Mr. Cochran said, "Let's go around by way of the fire escape and push."

The two expressmen and Mr. Cochran made nothing of passing from Mrs. Bentley's parlor to Mrs. Cochran's parlor by the fire escape, but Mr. Bentley is light headed and had to be helped across—by his wife. Then the two entered the Cochran apartments, for the first time, like thieves in the night.

Now all six combined their strength and pushed, but the bed only laughed at them.

"Well, nothing more can be done now," said Cochran. "The bed is here, and it's got to stay here for the present. Now, you men might as well go about your business. You've done what you set out to do—the bed is up here fast enough."

"How much do I owe you?" asked Bentley of the German.

"Two dollars. I'll sent 'arount a carpenter if you vand."

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Bentley. "He'll be able to move it."

Back across the fire escape was Mr. Bentley helped by his faithful wife, and then they bade the Cochrans good night. It was such an impossible thing that had happened that everybody felt good natured once more, just as in a blizzard or a period of excessive heat people make light of their misfortunes and passersby joke one another.

Next morning immediately after breakfast Mrs. Bentley went down to the bed company to see whether they could suggest a way of getting the bed out of Mrs. Cochran's doorway.

They had moved, and a big sign in the window bore the legend, "To Be Opened In A Few Days as a Ladies' Luncheon."

For the space of two days that bed stood in the doorway while carpenter after carpenter came and looked at it and shook his head and went away.

Then came one who said: "I've seen those beds before. They ain't worth bothering with. The company's failed that made them. Now, next door to my shop is a vacant lot, and if I cut the bed to pieces I guess you can dump it there and the owner of the lot won't mind."

Mrs. Bentley hailed the scheme as a heaven sent proposition. Mr. Bentley was down town, and Mrs. Cochran, who was on the other side chatting with her—for in spite of what had come between them they were now quite friendly—seconded the plan.

The carpenter borrowed an ax of the janitor, and in a half hour's time, with the exception of the mirror, which was preserved intact, there was not a square foot of the bed unbroken. The carpenter sent the pieces down on the dumb waiter and then took them away and presumably dumped them.

Mrs. Cochran spent five minutes shutting and opening the door. It was so pleasant to be able to do it again.

Then Mrs. Bentley invited her neighbor into her flat and apologized for making so much trouble.

"It was no trouble at all, my dear. It has made something to talk about."

Now, Mr. Bentley seemed to think that $25 for the bed, $2 for delivery and $10 for damage to the hallways, together with the charge of the carpenter for the time it took him to destroy the bed, was rather a large amount to pay for a subject of conversation. So he isn't saying a word about it.

The Peddlers Parade.

Don't fail to be present and see the Peddlers Parade, on the lawn at the residence of Mrs. Cliff A. Adams this evening. The ladies of the Baptist church have engaged a lot of peddlers to be present and help them entertain the crowd.

The peanut vender and the candy maker, all the newsboys and bootblacks, the milk man and the corn doctor, will hustle for trade, in spite of the book agents and the market women who, of course, can out talk them all. The hotel man and rug peddler will not get all the patronage, for the umbrella fixer and the scissors sharpener will mix it with them sure. Everybody invited. Admission, 10c at the gate; you will see the parade and be served with delicious ices and cake. Bring your pennies to "taste the wares" of the peddlers.

shawls, etc., which are very stylish and beautiful. New goods are be-

WE WANT STATISTICS

That Will Help to Get a Cannery at Bryan.

The publishers of The Eagle want to see a cannery established at Bryan, provided circumstances are such that there is a reasonable chance of its getting enough products to can, and, therefore, making a cannery a paying institution.
We believe there are more peaches grown within reach of a Bryan cannery than most people realize, and that the peach crop alone will go a good little way toward furnishing a season's work for a cannery.

We want to get some facts on the subject, and hereby ask the readers of The Eagle to make reports of the acreage in peaches in their respective neighborhoods.
State age of trees—for illustration,
use the following form:

John Jones—total acres peach trees, four; acres in full bearing, two; acres beginning to bear, one;
young trees not yet bearing,
one acre. Principal varieties, first, Elberta; second, lemon cling; third, seedlings, miscellaneous in character.

In your report state how many farmers will plant tomatoes, okra, etc., for a cannery, and make an estimate of the total acreage that might be counted upon in your neighborhood, stating limits, to be so planted, if a cannery were established.

IMPORTANT OPINION.

Machinery and Supplies for Panama Canal Can Be Purchased Here.
Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 14.—D. M.
Parry, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, has received an opinion from Sullivan & Cromwell, New York City, general counsel in America of the new Panama Canal company, which means much to manufacturers in the United States.
The opinion is to the effect that every dollar's worth of machinery and supplies necessary for the construction of the canal may be purchased in the United States without restraint in the operation of the French laws under which the company was originally chartered. American manufacturers have been considerably agitated over the provisions of the law governing the French company, and it has been feared that the purchases of machinery and supplies would have to be made in France.

New Professors Selected.

College Station, Tex., Aug. 14.—At the recent meeting of the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical college, Prof. W. D. Gibbs of the New Hampshire Agricultural college was elected to the position of dean of the agricultural department and director of the Texas experiment stations, and Prof. Fred F. Johnson, associate professor of agriculture in the Indiana Agricultural college, was elected professor of agriculture. A new chair was created, that of professor of economics and history, and Charles Potts, a graduate of the university, was elected to fill it.

Coal Vein Burning.

Denison, Tex., Aug. 14.—J. A. Brogden, a farmer living in the Gordonville community, twenty-five miles northwest of Denison, was in the city Wednesday and brought news of a strange phenomenon on the farm of Capt. H.
Dennis, three miles west of Gordon-ville. Mr. Brogden said there was a crack in the earth in the bed of a dry branch, and that smoke and gas were issuing from it. There was a great deal of excitement, he said, among the people in the Gordonville community. It is supposed there is a coal bed in the earth and that it is on fire.

Profits More Than Capital.

New York, Aug. 14.—Members of the United States Steel corporation underwriting syndicate have received a third dividend of 5 per cent on the face of the $200,000,000 for which they were liable. The syndicate was not asked to advance more than 12½ per cent of this amount, however; so its profits to date are $30,000,000 on the actual outlay of $25,000,000, or a return of 125 per cent, less a comparatively small sum in loss of interest.

First Negro Exposition.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt pressed a button in the library of his summer home at Oyster Bay tonight that opened the first negro exposition ever held—the Middle States and Mississippi Valley exposition—which will occupy the first regular armory until September 14. The exposition will show the progress of the negro race in this country from the abolition of slavery forty years ago. Over twenty states and territories are de-presented.

Charles Fair and Wife Killed.

Everett, France, Aug. 14.—As Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair, Americans, related to Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., (Miss Virginia Fair) were returning to Paris from Treverville, their automobile swerved and crashed into a tree, fifteen miles from here. Both were killed. The chauffeur became insane as a consequence of the shock.

Alabama Prohibition Ticket.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 14.—A complete ticket for governor and state officials has been announced by the Prohibitionists of Alabama. Rev. W. D.
Gay of this city heads the ticket as the nominee for governor.

MURDERS BEING CLEARED

Chicago Police Get Valuable Clues That Lead to Arrests.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The police obtained their first clue of value in the Bartholin case Wednesday and developments that will go far toward solving the mystery are expected within twenty-four hours.

Inspector Hunt found a woman who declared that at daybreak on the morning following the night on which Minnie Mitchell disappeared in company with W. A. Bartholin she saw a driver for a laundry company, who is now held in custody by the police, and a man wearing a Panama hat and a dark sack coat at the corner of Forty-Eighth and State streets, where Minnie Mitchell's body was found. They were going back and forth in the weeds and acting in a suspicious manner.

While the police have always contended that the laundry driver, who was a boarder in the house of Mrs. Bartholin, had knowledge of her death, they had not suspected that he was in any way connected with the murder of Minnie Mitchell. The woman, however, was positive in her statement that she saw these two in company with the third man at the time and place mentioned. She knew both of them and declared that there was no chance of her being mistaken. The description of the third man, as far as it describes anybody, is a description of Bartholin the night he was last seen with the Mitchell girl.

COAL SUPPLY SHORT.

There Are No Great Quantities of Anthracite in Any of the Yards.

New York, Aug. 14.—Inquiries have been made by the Tribune as to the stock of anthracite coal on hand at several cities in the east with the following result:

New York City dealers say the supply here has been practically exhausted for weeks. The railroad companies have been able to deliver only a few thousand tons daily recently, and much of it is known as washed coal.

Retail price of coal in Jersey City is $9 a ton delivered, or $8 at the yards, and orders are taken only conditionally. The dealers have agents out purchasing wherever they can find coal. None is coming in by the cars.

Buffalo, N. Y., reports that the Erie railroad's Hillside is the only anthracite that can be bought there at present. It sells for $5.65 a ton, and is not the best quality of hard coal. The Philadelphia and Reading, the Lehigh, the Delaware and Hudson, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroads have all stopped the sale of anthracite at their trestles, and have closed their local agencies.

At Albany, N. Y., the retail dealers have in stock not to exceed 2000 tons of anthracite, which they are selling at $6 to $6.25 a ton. The Delaware and Hudson company has about 1000 tons in reserve at Delanson. This, with 300 tons held by a wholesale dealer, is all that can be counted on.

The Wilkesbarre, Pa., correspondent says there is no general supply of anthracite on hand at any point in the coal region. That what is being sold is some that the companies are producing in their washeries and some that is obtained by individual concerns from small coal pickings. The regular dealers have none and can get none.

MORE TO RESUME WORK.

Believed Coal Operators Will Start Some of the Mines.

Wilkesbarre, Aug. 14.—President Mitchell said he did not know what significance was attached to the gathering of so many operators and mine superintendents at Pottsville Wednesday.

The impression in the coal trade circles here, is that the meeting was held to hear views of Vice President Loomis, of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, who has just completed a tour of the anthracite region. It is reported Loomis recommends the starting of some colliers in different parts of the region.

Warkne washery at Duryea resumed operations today. A crowd of five or six hundred strikers and sympathizers surround the works and situation is threatening. Sheriff has a small number of deputies on the ground.

MORE SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Soldiers and Gendarmes Close Them Despite Protest of the People.

Brest, France, Aug. 14.—Soldiers and gendarmes protected officers in closing the religious schools at Plougomvél, Plomoguer and Finisterre, and the schools were closed despite the protests of the inhabitants of the towns.

It was rumored at first that the troops were going to St. Meen and Folgoet, and the peasantry flocked to those places, remaining on guard all night, to learn that the soldiers had gone to Plougomvél and Plomoguer.

At Ploudaniel a barricade of carts, which barred the way to the sisters' school, had been replaced by a network of barbed wire, and pointed stakes having been driven into the ground to injure the horses of the gendarmes. In addition a moat had been dug in front of the school door and filled with filth.

When the cabinet met to-day, Premier Combes communicated reports on the situation in Finisterre, where the superior of the congregation of the Holy Ghost refuses to abandon schools. In this report he said the sisters had been ordered twice to leave the schools, but these orders have not been obeyed, owing to the opposition by the peasantry and by owners of the property in which the schools were situated.

Continuing, he declared officials showed the agitation over the closing of schools in Finisterre was purely a Royalist movement. There have been grave occurrences, said the premier, which came within penal laws and which would result in prosecutions, instructions for which had been sent to the procurer general.

Mrs. Deacon Denies the Story.

Paris, Aug. 14.—The Matin, which has been publishing the story of an alleged secret betrothal between Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany and Miss Gladys Deacon, daughter of Mrs. Parker Deacon, ceased publication of the story, having a letter from Mrs. Deacon as follows:

"I have read with most profound sadness the Matin's articles. I know better than any one the real character of the very brief relations during a meeting of forty-eight hours at Blenheim, home of the duke and duchess of Marlborough, brought about between the Crown Prince and my daughter, who are both children. It required imagination to transform the matter into such a state of affairs."
